Faith

Faith is a late and productive variety; about 7 to 10 days after Elsanta and the same ripening time as Florence. Faith produces beautiful bright red fruits with a great taste. The fruit weight is on average 22 grams and it remains constant from the beginning to the end. The fruits of Faith are suitable for both farmgate sales and longer trading channels.

Cultivation

Faith is a vigorous and robust plant; a large planting distance is therefore recommended: 25,000 plants per hectare is sufficient. The variety has a staggered flowering period, which guarantees a long harvesting season. The flower quality is excellent, so the Faith has very little deformation. The trusses have beautiful long branches, which means that the picking performance is high.

The harvest period can be delayed by laying winter straw or using waiting beds. The plants of the Faith must be protected during severe winter frosts. Be careful with too much nitrogen in the fall; otherwise the development of the flowers will be delayed.

The variety is fairly tolerant to mildew and botrytis. In a substrate cultivation one must be alert to mildew.

Harvest and Sales

Faith has a bright red color and a conical shape similar to Sonata. Faith has a high productivity, so the nutrient content must be maintained during the harvest. Faith is a great end of the strawberry season; especially if you have the plants from de Kemp BV; they produce just that little bit extra!
